

Mark Rossi

Vice President, Career Services

“Transformation and optimization are all about people, process, technology, and data. People will always be the most important.”

Mark is Bravanti's Vice President, Career Services, where he develops and nurtures client partnerships for the firm.

Mark is a high-energy and collaborative professional with a strong track record for client satisfaction and building enduring relationships. He has a history of excellence in leading sales organizations in the financial, corporate, healthcare, and legal space. Mark is a highly skilled, hands-on leader in managing cross functional teams and improving human capital through talent management, development, goal establishment, and performance assessment.

He invested more than 25 years at Merrill Corporation, competing his tenure as the Senior Vice President and Global Head of Disclosure Sales. Most recently, Mark served as the Senior Vice President of Sales at Esquire Deposition Solutions, where he also held other leadership roles in operations. Mark has a record of revenue creation through consistent brand enhancement and building business adjacencies.

Mark has a degree in marketing and finance from the University of Dayton and continuing education classes at Northwestern Kellogg. His association involvement includes the American College of Healthcare Executives (ACHE), The Society for Human Resources Management (SHRM), The Human Resources Management Association of Chicago (HRMAC), the Young Presidents Organization, Association of Corporate Growth, Financial Executives Inc., Chief Sales Executive Forum, Entrepreneur of the Year, International Practice Managers Association, and Mentium Mentoring.

As an adopted Chicagoan, Mark made his home in the Chicago suburbs with his wife and three children, and has roots in up-state New York and Florida.
